Commissioner for Patents

Appellant states that the Examiner has issued an official notice regarding "unitary" and "uninterrupted". The Examiner has not taken official notice. The Examiner has merely taken the position that "unitary" and "uninterrupted" are broad terms easily met by the reinforcing member of Leist et al which are joined together for forming a single reinforcement bar, as he clearly states. Clearly, "unitary" and "uninterrupted" are so broad and subjective as to define any number of structural arrangements. Regarding the location of the bars under the folds, Appellant is reading a structural arrangement that is not as specifically recited as he believes it to be and such is addressed in detail in the Answer.
